WHO ARE THE SIDECAR GUYS?

Ever imagined what it would be like traveling across 10 time zones, in blizzard-like conditions at temperatures as low as -45°C on a city commuter scooter and barn-built sidecar? Or perhaps breaking down in the Sahara desert with zero mechanical expertise only to finally discover what a bearing is? Matt Bishop and Reece Gilkers are The Sidecar Guys. They're known as The Sidecar Guys because they hold the very niche Guinness World Record holders for the longest-ever journey by scooter and sidecar and are the first people to circumnavigate the planet on a scooter with a sidecar.

Having never ridden a motorcycle or sat in a sidecar before, Matt and Reece chose the most inconvenient mode of transport they could possibly think of to find the answer to one crucial question - what are people like outside of their hometown of Banbury? On an adventure that took them through the snows of Siberia, up the searing heights of the Andes, and at times, found them completely exposed and reliant on the good nature of complete strangers, both them and their scooter and sidecar were quite literally being pushed to their absolute limits!

Since returning to the UK, they have forged a path as one of the most stupidly, hilarious, public speaker acts around. They have founded The Armchair Adventure Festival - the UK's most adventurous festival, have created the #GetOutDoStuff Travel Grant, aimed at encouraging people to begin their own adventures, and have started Sidecar Experience, a tour company that offers the completely immersive experience of traveling by motorcycle and sidecar. Better still the three-wheeled adventures have continued right across the globe, they recently returned from a top-to-bottom USA trip and have more planned for the future - as you are reading this, it's very possible they are on an adventure right now!

SPEAKERS
